Ariel Franz

Ariel Franz, now 14, began her musical journey when she was 4 and began taking vocal lessons from her preschool teacher, Wilitez Katie Poirier (A & W Studios). Her first public performance was at a pageant when she was 5. New opportunities came her way at 6 years old when she met Ron Patterson, founder of IPOP (International Presentation of Performers). Through his mentorship and others at IPOP and National American Miss she got experience in acting, modeling and singing.

"I was very nervous the first time in front of so many people," Ariel said. "IPOP has helped me tremendously with my self confidence and I appreciate the love and support of everyone there for the past 8 years."

Ariel reached a new milestone in 2023 as she performed in Nashville as part of the Josie Music Awards weekend. That weekend changed her life. Curt Ryle, co-owner of Clarksville Creative Sound, was there with some of the CCS artists and heard Ariel perform "Mama." He said he was mesmerized by her voice.

Working with Curt, who devoted much of his life to songwriting and playing music, Ariel has released 6 country pop songs with CCS and two traditional country songs. She also has four music videos. She recorded a country gospel song or two last time she was in the studio with Curt. But the music business isn't new to Ariel, who recorded an EP and several pop songs before she became part of CCS. Since she was young, Ariel has performed wherever she could through the greater Phoenix area but hopes to expand to other parts of Arizona or even other states in the near future. This year she was honored to be selected to sing the National Anthem at the Cubs-Padres spring training game in Peoria. Ariel is expected to make an appearance on an American Country Network original, "Small Town Sound," which follows the lives of CCS artists as they work with Curt.

In addition to singing, Ariel is a model, actress and dancer which might be why casting directors, producers and talent agencies are pursuing her. Or it could just be the powerful voice, the confident acting and voiceover work, her personality and her attitude.
